

Great to See My Work in Action

Joseph Tracy, Florida State University

The second week at the office went by so fast. Now that we are done with training, I got to hit the ground running and take on a bunch of new assignments. Time really flies when you're going through cases on Westlaw!

I spent a lot of this week working on one particular case. After I submitted a memorandum on the issues, I got to be in the room while two of the partners plotted out litigation strategy based in part on some of the research I did. That was a really rewarding experience, it was a major highlight to get to see how attorneys plan their strategies.

My favorite part about being a summer associate for Rumberger is all of the practical experience the firm gives you. On Monday, my mentor allowed me to attend a mediation he was doing. I have never seen anything like it before, and it was really interesting to watch the attempted resolution of a live case before trial. We also did practice depositions this week, which was a lot of fun and I got some really helpful feedback.

Another great moment from this week was going to play Top Golf with the other summer associates and all of our mentors. It was a really fun bonding activity that helped me appreciate the great workplace culture Rumberger has. I'm just happy I didn't finish last.

I am looking forward to another great week as a summer associate in week 3!
