

Week Six- All About the Experts

Evan Thomas – Florida International University

Week 6 was all about experts. This week, we were given the prompt for our writing competition. The competition focuses on an expert's opinions that we are seeking to exclude. I am not familiar with the law set forth in Daubert and its progeny, which governs our writing competition. Because of this, the writing competition has been challenging.

However, I am excited to see how my motion to exclude turns out. In addition to working on the writing competition, I have been helping Mike Holt review case law in order to prepare for an upcoming deposition with an expert witness. This assignment also revolves around Daubert and its progeny. It is safe to say that by the time I am done with working on this assignment and the writing competition, I will be an expert on experts.
