

Week Seven- Take Me Out to the Ballpark!

Ella Biggins – Florida State University

Only three weeks left of the 2022 Summer Associate Program! I had a great time at attorney socials this week and I learned a lot in between court hearings and research assignments.

Right now, I am working on a research assignment for two of the firm's founders: Dick Caldwell and Bud Kirk. It is great getting to know them and understanding the vision they have for young attorneys. Assignments like this definitely put the brain to work, so taking a break is a must. This week, I took a break with the Tampa attorneys. We went to the Rays versus Red Sox baseball game in St. Petersburg. We had a great time tailgating, playing corn hole, and watching the game. One cool feature about the Rays Stadium is the tank full of stingrays. Baseball fans can pet the stingrays as they watch the game. The Rays pulled off a win, making it the perfect end to a fun-filled evening.

In between my work for the attorneys, I also completed my Daubert motion for the writing competition. The Summer Associate Program puts on a writing competition each year so we have a practical way to test our writing skills. I am looking forward to seeing what feedback the judges provide.

Now that the writing competition is wrapped up, we can focus on completing assignments for the attorneys, and preparing for the mock trial, which is only two weeks away!
